I think I approved spam, this time it was purely operator error, hitting the wrong button sigh[1]

On a more interesting note, unlike times past, the last round of Checkpoint bugs didn't seem to get more than a passing wave in a posting– I'm wondering if we're just all immune to bug reports these days, or if it's simply that patches aren't that big a deal anymore?

Paul

[1] It'll be fixed on the new machine, since I'll be doing pre-filtering of mail before it hits the queue.
