Hmm, I've never been someone who likes endless debates about small bits and pieces which have no effect at all on, well, anything. In context of the Security Advisory, I don't think that writing "X Windows" instead of "X" or "X Window System" introduces a security hole, or makes it hard to understand what the Advisory is talking about. Therefore, I guess most people have better things to do than to worry about this one...

Greetings
Nils
