Hello Everyone,

You may have seen the recent announcement regarding new OpenSSL vulnerabilities. <URL: http://www.openssl.org/news/secadv\_20030930.txt >

Just thought I'd drop a line to head off the usual questions. :-)

Don't panic. The vulnerability is denial-of-service.

OpenSSL 0.9.7c will be imported into -CURRENT and -STABLE over the next couple of days, and included in 4.9-RELEASE.

Fixes for the security branches will be backported and incorporated over the next week.

Don't expect to see a security advisory until most or all of the commits have been made.

Cheers,
