This is not about lost maintainers or non-existent patches, that's been done to death. Reporting vulnerabilities to distributions can be so depressing – and the replies you get (if any) are so annoying, that if it was from Microsoft, they would have been grilled in the press already for them.

Unfortunately this matter is hard to verify for the average reader. So I think it would be wise to add proof to this claim.

This message is using 100% recycled electrons.

Some men see computers as they are and say "Windows"
I use computers with Linux and say "Why Windows?"
(Thanks JFK, for the insight.)
