Thanks for the note. After popping back into SpyBot S&D, I see it lists a missing immunization. ;) I'll update the posted text file to incorporate this.

I heard about this as well. I didn't have any form of VNC installed on this system. (I normally use TightVNC, however this system is on a KVM with my production machine.) You can tell it to "always ignore" something, which I found handy for the various keyloggers/trojans I had saved that I knew about. It didn't detect them on subsequent scans.
