

Code Red Thread is Dead, more or less.

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Mailing-Lists/securityfocus/incidents/2001-08/0113.html>

---

From: Alfred Huger (ah@securityfocus.com)

Date: 08/02/01

Date: Wed, 1 Aug 2001 19:28:30 -0600 (MDT)
From: Alfred Huger <ah@securityfocus.com>
To: <incidents@securityfocus.com>
Subject: Code Red Thread is Dead, more or less.
Message-ID: <Pine.GSO.4.30.0108011926480.24173-100000@mail>

I am going to let Stuart Staniford's words be our closing words for Code Red for now. Tomorrow I will post followup on the final numbers we have here from people submitting their logs. If people want to discuss technical details of the worm and how it spread that's fine so long as they do not tread over well traveled ground.

VP Engineering
SecurityFocus.com
"Vae Victis"

---

This list is provided by the SecurityFocus ARIS analyzer service. For more information on this free incident handling, management and tracking system please see: <http://aris.securityfocus.com>

---

- Previous message: cg: "A bit of Code Red research"
- Messages sorted by: [\[ date \]](#) [\[ thread \]](#) [\[ subject \]](#) [\[ author \]](#) [\[ attachment \]](#)