Well DUH! That's why you've moved your spamming operation here. You got so severely spanked there nobody will listen to your horse shit any more.

And you probably ARE desperate for customers. Having all them servers up just so you can pretend to be a bunch of different people must be an expensive hobby.

Yeah, that was a real bonehead post. You should think about what you're saying once in a while. If you don't know the answer, keep your mouth shut.

But no, you ASSumed that because a BIOS password might be encrypted it would be hard to crack and might cost a bunch of money. Then you actually tried to defend that post later by blubbering something about you actually having some first hand knowledge that it costs $300 to have a guy move a jumper.

ROTFLMAO!

And by the way, that's wasn't me who busted you on your asininity, I was just one of the people who were falling off their chairs laughing at you.

Trying to weasel dance around answering posts to your other sock puppets are we? What a pathetic little tard you are.

Get bent. You're nothing but a group football. Stay around as long as you like, the rest of us need the exercise kicking your ass from one end of Usenet to the other. We love rejects like you. Super easy targets, and it's funnier than shit watching you flailing your little arms around trying to convince the people who are kicking you that they're not. That it's really just "2 or 3 people" who think you're a foul mouthed, incompetent, nym hopping, shillpuppeting, MORON.
