

IP Popup Utility

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.os.ms-windows.nt.admin.security/2003-04/0065.html>

From: Frazier Scott (scottf@oit.edu)

Date: 04/24/03

From: scottf@oit.edu (Frazier Scott)

Date: Thu, 24 Apr 2003 15:36:39 GMT

Does anyone know if there is an IP popup utility similar to the alerter or messenger services that run on NT/2000/XP but that has the following capabilities:

- 1) Can send to a range of IP addresses
- 2) Will popup on the recipient screen regardless of whether the workstation is logged in, locked, or has a screensaver active.

It seems that Windows itself would have some switch or something that can be passed to the alerter or messenger services to allow for this, otherwise why do Service Control Error popups show up at the login prompt? I just can't seem to find it.

Thanks,

Frazier.