ISS Advisor <http://www.issadvisor.com> , the best online community website for ISS, wishes everyone a welcome back from the holidays. We have over 100+ registered members now and the forum posts are beginning to flow with new daily topics and content.

We have updated the site with two new column articles.

There is now a high level white paper on Dynamic Threat Protection, transitioning from reactive to proactive security. It reviews the basics of what dynamic threat protection entails, and gives reasons for companies to change from outdated manual protection methods to a more automated protection platform based on the Internet Security System's platform.

There is an online presentation on How to select a managed protection service partner: It shows the current MPS industry and what to look for when deciding on a security provider, and describes what Internet Security Systems has to offer.

Please share this information with your friends and would like any suggestions for improvements. We have many new tutorials and guides planned. Please keep checking the site.
