

comp.security.ssh: Re: (no subject)

Re: (no subject)

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2002-04/0458.html>

From: Richard E. Silverman (slade@shore.net)

Date: 04/29/02

From: slade@shore.net (Richard E. Silverman)

Date: 29 Apr 2002 07:35:15 -0400

>>>> "KX" == Anonymous <nobody@paranoici.org> writes:

KX> My question is this: How hard is it (or how likely is it) for the KX> shell provider machine admin to access or view the data stream
KX> coming from the anon proxy before it is encrypted by the ssh KX> daemon?

Trivially easy, since he or she owns both the network over which the cleartext TCP connection from the shell host to the proxy, and the SSH daemon itself, which can be replaced with a version which logs all your traffic.

--

Richard Silverman
slade@shore.net

- Next message: Nell: "SSH.com Server for Windows -- failed child process"
- Previous message: Wolf Grossi: "Re: id_rsa from putty"
- Next in thread: Neva: "Re: \(no subject\)"
- Maybe reply: Neva: "Re: \(no subject\)"
- Messages sorted by: [\[date \] \[thread \] \[subject \] \[author \] \[attachment \]](#)