

OpenSSH (on Solaris) and forced p/w change

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2002-10/2733.html>

From:

Date: 10/25/02

Date: Thu, 24 Oct 2002 23:24:50 -0400

hi -

has anyone had any luck configuring OpenSSH to handle new user logins configured with the passwd -f option (this sets the p/w modification date to 0 in /etc/shadow)? The desired behavior would be for it to accept the password and then immediately force the user to change it, but I found that OpenSSH simply rejects the password. any insight would be greatly appreciated!
--beata

--

Beata Jones
Equinet Systems Inc.
beata@equinetsys.com

- Next message: Weiguang Shi: "scp hangs but ssh works"
- Previous message: Jon Larsen: "error using putty command line options"
- Next in thread: Darren Tucker: "Re: OpenSSH \(on Solaris\) and forced p/w change"
- Reply: Darren Tucker: "Re: OpenSSH \(on Solaris\) and forced p/w change"
- Messages sorted by: [\[date \]](#) [\[thread \]](#) [\[subject \]](#) [\[author \]](#) [\[attachment \]](#)