

Re: resuming file transfer with scp

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2002-11/0355.html>

From: Dan Skinner (JDanSkinner@JDanSkinner.com)

Date: 11/27/02

From: JDanSkinner@JDanSkinner.com (Dan Skinner)

Date: 26 Nov 2002 19:35:40 -0800

magnueri@hotmail.com (Magnus) wrote in message news:<c4618199.0211260555.69a565e2@posting.google.com>...

> Kyler Laird <Kyler@news.Lairds.org> wrote in message news:<9742b-mht.ln1@news.lairds.org>...

> > "Nico Kadel-Garcia" <nkadel@bellatlantic.net> writes:

>

> > > The file is constantly growing, so this would be a real pain.

>

> > > Then it's not the same file. That's.... a bit more complicated.

>

> > I'm not aware of any reasonable solution for which a file that > > grows at the end is a complication.

>

> > rsync can certainly handle without complaint, but I'm annoyed > > by its use of making a copy of the partial.

>

> How about a horrible kludge using sz/rz then? ZModem is more or less

> "designed for bad connections", so it might be an option.

>

> I haven't used ZModem with growing files that I can think of, but I > don't think it would mind.

>

>

> Magnus

C-Kermit

Regards...Dan.