

Re: Problems connecting to *nix cvs server using Putty on Win2k

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2002-11/0369.html>

From: Grégoire Weber (gregweb-NOSPAM@i-con.ch)

Date: 11/28/02

Date: Thu, 28 Nov 2002 01:19:53 +0100

From: Grégoire Weber <gregweb-NOSPAM@i-con.ch>

Hi Simon,

That was the point, I saw a lot of SSH1_MSG_* in the log
so I tried it with a SSH1 key ...
... and it worked!

Great tip, much thanks!!!

Greetings, Greg

Simon Tatham wrote:

> Grégoire Weber <gregweb-NOSPAM@i-con.ch> wrote:

>

>> The problem is I get a password prompt while connecting to the CVS server.

>

> [assorted debugging details]

>

> Post the contents of the PuTTY Event Log; that's what it's for.

>

> The most likely cause IME is that you've somehow accidentally made > an SSH1 connection, and hence your SSH2 key isn't helpful. But > without some details of what PuTTY is _actually_ doing (as opposed > to what you think you told it to do :-) nobody can tell for sure.