

Re: scp?

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2002-12/0334.html>

From: Dimitri Maziuk (dima@127.0.0.1)

Date: 12/24/02

From: Dimitri Maziuk <dima@127.0.0.1>
Date: Tue, 24 Dec 2002 19:30:44 +0000 (UTC)

Richard E. Silverman sez:

>

>

> Well then, try debugging to find out why it's not working. For example:
> note implies that authentication isn't working. You haven't said what > kinds of authentication are allowed on the hosts involved, or what you're > trying to use.

Both kinds. With password auth, it asks for the password for 1st connection and fails on the 2nd. With key-based auth it fails on the second connection, even though it's the same key for both systems.

...However, perhaps you need to turn on agent forwarding to > the second ssh invocation has access to your keys.

But only when copying between two remote machines? Anyway, I tried it with non-protected key, no dice.

Dima

--

I like the US government, makes the Aussie one look less dumb and THAT is a pretty big effort.

-- Craig Small