

Re: CVS without a shell

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2004-03/0322.html>

From: Pierre Asselin (pa_at_invalid.invalid)

Date: 03/26/04

Date: Thu, 25 Mar 2004 21:46:42 -0500

Cole Tuininga <cole@tuininga.org> wrote:

> Hi all, I have a question about cvs with ssh that I was hoping y'all might > be able to help me with. Essentially, I've got a box that I want to give > my developers secure cvs access (via ssh). However, I don't want them to > have a shell account.

> With the shell set to /bin/false, they can't cvs in. Any ideas? Thanks > in advance...

If the server is on a Unix, try 'man sshd' and read the section on "AUTHORIZED_KEYS FILE FORMAT". Especially the part about "command=".

I think the command you want them to execute is "cvs server".