

comp.security.ssh: Re: ssh exec overhead

Re: ssh exec overhead

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2004-07/0217.html>

---

From: all mail refused (elvis\_at\_notatla.org.uk)

Date: 07/29/04

Date: 29 Jul 2004 20:23:58 GMT

In article <Pine.LNX.4.60.0407291309370.27587@unhtugznvy.pbz>, Linux Doctor wrote:

>I'm using ssh to invoke a command on a remote machine. ...

>Given that we may rapid-fire these commands from within shell scripts, I >fear the .3 second ssh overhead may cause delays, or even backlog.

>

>Is this delay typical via ssh? Is there a way to avoid it and still >use ssh?

This is typical in my experience (I normally use DSA keys).

Can you batch multiple commands into a single ssh session ?

Maybe with a tunnel ?

--

Elvis Notargiacomo master AT barefaced DOT cheek
<http://www.notatla.org.uk/qoen/>