

Re: Putty executing command supplied by remote server

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/comp.security.ssh/2004-10/0164.html>

---

From: Owen Dunn (owend_at_chiark.greenend.org.uk)

Date: 10/22/04

Date: 22 Oct 2004 15:03:21 +0100

Michael Surette <msurette@laframboise.net> writes:

> At this point I think that the printing interface to Putty is my > best bet, although I'll need to do some digging. I'm really not > familiar enough with the protocols involved to know how the server > would tell the client that something is print data.

The server emits CSI Ps i (ESC [ Ps i) where Ps is 5 to start sending stuff to the printer and 4 to stop it.

See <http://bjh21.me.uk/all-escapes/all-escapes.txt> and search for `Media copy'

(S)