We have a Unix-based database that uses AIX. Workstations in other facilities that are not on our internal network run Windows and need access to our database. We have installed the PuTTY client on the workstations in the external facilities, and they now have no problem accessing our database using the SSH connection. HOWEVER, they cannot print reports from our database to the local printers in their facilities.

Can someone advise me on how to make this work?

Thanks for any help you can give me.

Jessi
