

Re: Get UPN in ASP

Source:

<http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.aspnet.security/2002-06/0041.html>

From: Andrew H (andrewh@noimgincspam.com)

Date: 06/03/02

From: "Andrew H" <andrewh@noimgincspam.com>

Date: Mon, 3 Jun 2002 09:18:13 -0500

The new Wrox book "Website Programming Problem-Design-Solution" (or something) does something like this by extending (customizing) the Principal and Identity objects. Their example adds additional methods and properties to these two objects so they are available for use on any aspx page. Stop on over to Borders Bookstore during lunch and take a peek at chapter five.

Andrew H

"Matt Flynn" <matthew_t_flynn@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:eNIcfwCCHA.1940@tkmsftngp04...

> We are using the Windows authentication in the config file. So what you are > saying is that if we use the Forms authentication we will get the user name > in the form acct@domain.com? How will this change how the user is > authenticated to IIS and the File System? I still want the user to be able > to authenticate to IIS and the File System using NTLM, but I also want to > look up additional information on the user in Active Directory. I guess the > best way to understand this is to change the authentication method and see > if this works, but any additional information on this would be great.

>

> Thanks

>

> Matt

>

>

> "Andrew H" <andrewh@noimgincspam.com> wrote in message

> news:#9J5SmNCCHA.1108@tkmsftngp04...

>> You get different objects (with slightly different interfaces) based on > the >> type of authentication (Windows vs. Forms etc...). So you have to look at >> the AuthenticationType property first, to see which type of object you > have.

microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.aspnet.security: Re: Get UPN in ASP

> >

> > Andrew H

> >

> > "Matt Flynn" <matthew.t.flyn