

Re: Server Application Unavailable when moving Domains

Source:

<http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.aspnet.security/2005-01/0317.html>

---

From: Gravy (Gravy_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 01/29/05

Date: Sat, 29 Jan 2005 04:47:03 -0800

Thanks for the reply Ken.

- a) I shall check the web.config file is allowing errors to be displayed. However, they still get the errors when browsing on the local machine.
- b) There is nothing in either the windows event log or the iis web log.

Graham

"Ken Schaefer" wrote:

- > a) Have you changed anything in the ASP.NET config to disable the display of errors to clients, which may be hiding more useful information?
- >
- > b) Anything in the Windows Event Logs? Changing the domain would have caused problems if you are using anything that relied on the credentials of a user from the old domain. There may be something logged in the Windows Event Logs.
- >
- > Cheers
- > Ken
- >
- > "Gravy" <Gravy@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:689ABC7D-6BE5-4C10-8FC7-9778C704E0EA@microsoft.com...
- > > Hi,
- > >
- > > I have a client that we have written an intranet asp.net application for.
- > > They installed it and configured it on some new hardware. The hardware was configured as a real domain with new client machines. Everything was working
- > > fine until...
- > >
- > > The new hardware was then moved to a new office and everything transferred
- > > to
- > > a new domain. The web server is not the domain controller. All that microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.aspnet.security: Re: Server Application Unavailable when moving Domains > > happened > > to the web server was a domain change AND the network admin added a second > > network card (for administration!).

> >
> > Now, whenever they browse to the asp.net application they get an error
> > page
> > that says: Server Application Unavailable.
> >
> > Is it possible that the addition of the second network card screwed things > > up.
> >
> > They are running Windows 2003 Server and .NET 1.1
> >
> > Hope someone can help me
> >
> > Regards
> >
> >
>
>
>