Thanks for the prompt replies, guys.

I have definitely been turned off storing this amount of relatively static data in the client cookie.

The number and granularity of the permissions set is a business requirement, so we can't easily remove any flexibility currently used by our customers. BTW, it's ~1000 users per installation, not total (my bad!)

I've had a bit of a look into the Membership/Role providers in 2.0, so will probably proceed down that path, as it gives enough flexibility without a lot of code.

Cheers,

Brett
