

Re: outrageous pop-ups

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.inetserver.iis.security/2004-01/0696.html>

From: Jeff Cochran (jcochran.nospam_at_naplesgov.com)

Date: 01/27/04

Date: Mon, 26 Jan 2004 23:06:54 GMT

On Mon, 26 Jan 2004 09:22:03 -0800, "Jocelyn" <sweet_joc@hotmail.com> wrote:

> sometimes, while I'm on the internet a series of pops ups
> come up talking about I "only have seconds" and that > things are wrong, but I found they come from this site > <http://www.passthison.com/r4/?s43>. I don't advise anyone > to go there, i haven't been, but then it changes your > home page to this http://default-homepage-
> network.com/index2.html so that when you get on the > internet the next time you are confronted with all this > stuff. and it also ejects my CD drives everytime. it's > annoying. does anyone know what it is, and how I can get > it to stop it?

It isn't IIS doing it, so you'll want to try a more generic security group. Or try:

<http://securityadmin.info/>

Jeff