

Re: My Doom Creators – incomprehensible

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.security.virus/2004-02/0241.html>

From: Sarah (anonymous_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 02/03/04

Date: Tue, 3 Feb 2004 01:29:43 -0800

Sharon Lane writes:

>-----Original Message----- >I just want to rant a little. I run a support network for adult rare >cancer and pediatric cancer patients. We help newly diagnosed >patients find information, support, treatment centers, etc.. It is an >all volunteer network of incredible cancer survivors.
>
>I can understand the creators of 'My Doom' going after companies like >Microsoft and SCO. In a very childish way, this is a way for them to >get what they consider to be 'big notches' on their belt buckles. I >started programming in 1966 and I am still doing it.
Why this is a >'triumph' to hackers still eludes me. I can only see it as a stupid >childish game.
>
>What I do not understand is why they would 'attack' my rare and >pediatric cancer website. They are using email addresses with the >suffix of that website and generating their virus-laden emails. This >cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be declared a triumph.
>Destroying the credibility of a website with the primary purpose of >helping babies, children, and adults with rare cancers is >incomprehensible.
>
>There is an old Italian saying, when translated, means "what goes >around, comes around". I hope and pray that I never microsoft.public.security.virus: Re: My Doom Creators – incomprehensible have to answer an >email requesting support or help for a rare or pediatric cancer >diagnosis from any of these people who deem it their job to destroy >our website. I am so angry with them today, I am not sure I would >help them. They certainly are not helping us!!!

>

>I am including my website name in this post, so that