All those MCSDs and MCTs are arrogant, pretentious and condescending.

Re: Adobe Acrobat Reader Updates

does the same thing
apply to Adobe
Acrobat
Reader
updates as applies to
Sun Java
Updates
about removing the older
updates.
Thanks for the feedback.

No , because when you update Adobe Reader it automatically removed the old version and leave the new one only . Although you might not have the latest , the really latest version , it is not so big problem :)

New to the board and missed the previous post about Java updates. I have a couple listed in my add/remove window and was wondering if it was safe to remove these?

This isn't a "board", it's Usenet and the original question was about
Adobe
Reader, not Java. Your answer is "yes" you should remove all previous
Java
installs from Add/Remove Programs and only have the latest

Re: Adobe Acrobat Reader Updates

which you get from Sun. Next time make a new post.

I think my question was polite and well intentioned. Your "reply" was rude and "boorish". Please forgive my misuse of the term "board" it was not meant to offend anyone and only demonstrates my experience, however "old-school" it may appear to the so called expert – Malke. Next time don't be such a "jerk".
