

Re: No security tab on a shared printer

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.security/2002-10/5218.html>

---

From: David Wright (SpeedofLight@comcast.net)

Date: 10/14/02

From: "David Wright" <SpeedofLight@comcast.net>

Date: Sun, 13 Oct 2002 18:57:23 -0700

Henry,

The printer is connected to the network using a print server.

I tried sharing the printer, but members of the USERS group don't have access to print; only members of the ADMINISTRATORS group and POWER USERS groups has permissions.

I want to change the permissions.

>-----Original Message-----

>Is she trying to connect an print from another machine or the xp box? If >she is coming from another machine then you will have to share the printer >out.

>

>

>"David Wright" <SpeedofLight@comcast.net> wrote in message >news:07d501c271fe$ed5b4a10$2ae2c90a@phx.gbl...

>> Henry,

>>

>> Thanks for the reply.

>>

>> I am running XP Pro on a home network.

>>

>> My network consists of a cable modem, router and two hubs >> connecting three computers together. One computer is in >> the basement and we share it among all the members of >> the family.

>>

microsoft.public.security: Re: No security tab on a shared printer

>> I have Admin rights and installed the printer. It works >> fine for me and all others with Admin rights. But my daughter has user rights and she can't print from the shared printer.
>>
>> I looked up the instructions on how to share the printer >> and it tells me to use the Security Tab to change the permissions of the users. However, there is no Security Tab.
>>
>> Furthermore, if I change my daughter's account to Admin rights, it works fine, but I don't want her to have the permissions that come along with the Admin account.
>>
>> Thanks!
>>
>>
>>
>> >-----Original Message-----
>> >David,
>> >
>> >What version of windows are you running? In general it >> is not a good idea >> >to run as admin. The accounts rights will dictate if you can set or view >> >the permissions tab. I would make her either a member of >> user or power
>> >user's after you assigned her the printer rights you would like her to have.
>> >Hope this helps....
>> >
>> >"David Wright" <SpeedofLight@comcast.net> wrote in >> message
>> >news:03a501c27180$23ba26f0$37ef2ecf@TKMSFTNGXA13...
>> >> I'm trying to change the permissions on my printer so >> my >> >> daughter can use the printer.
>> >>
>> >> The instructions say to:
>> >>
>> >> Open Printers and Faxes.
>> >> Right-click the printer for which you want to change or >> >> remove permissions, click Properties, and then click
>> the

microsoft.public.security: Re: No security tab on a shared printer

>> >> Security tab.
>> >>
>> >> Oh no! There is no Security Tab?
>> >>
>> >> WTF?
>> >>
>> >> I made my daughter part of the Admin Group and it works >> >> fine, but I don't want her to have Admin rights.
How
>> can
>> >> I change permission for her to use the printer without being a member of the Admin Group?
>> >
>> >
>> >.
>> >
>
>
>.
>