

Re: annoying internet dial-up program

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.security/2002-12/8817.html>

From: Michael W (MrNoSpam@yashoo.com)

Date: 12/10/02

From: "Michael W" <MrNoSpam@yashoo.com>

Date: Tue, 10 Dec 2002 15:23:06 -0000

There are also places, other than the registry, where applications can be set to start up.

There are a number of applications out there to help look at these things, but I use System Mechanic from <http://www.iolo.com>. It does a whole lot more besides.

It is not free, but is fully operational for 30 days which should/may be enough time to get you sorted.

Regards,

Mike

"Lecter" <2@2.com> wrote in message

news:3df5e45e.966481@msnews.microsoft.com...

> I's a Trojan House kinda program which will auot-start as the > operation system is launched!

> If your system is Win98, you can follow the below step:

> 1 search the dial-up program in the harddisk. if found it, del the > flies!

> 2 if it failed. try to edit the registry

> HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software\Microsoft\Windows\Current Version\Run

>

>

.....
.....\Runonce

> etc

> 3 reinstall the system(suppose that you ahve scan your harddisk by AV > software).

>

> What system On Mon, 9 Dec 2002 21:09:19 -0800, "mike"

> <augustbaby18@hotmail.com> wrote:

>

> >i would like to know how i can get rid of an annoying

> >dial-up (teen porn site) window that keeps popping up

microsoft.public.security: Re: annoying internet dial-up program > >while i use the internet. i've tried to uninstall this > >dial-up program but it keeps re-appearing and attempting > >to dial a call through my modem (i have had to disconnect > >my modem because of this). it also keeps creating > >a "webdialer" folder in my "programs" file. thank you

>