I got a problem, but I don't know exactly what it is, so Im going to try my best to explain what is happening.

First of all when Im on AIM and I am IMing someone, I will get a message saying that my connection has been interupted. I get these messages no more than every ten minutes apart. I haven't looked for help from AIM because I believe it has to do with my connection or my computer because secondly, when Im surfing the internet I get the message sayin, "This page cannot be displayed", along with that, my internet has been running very slow lately. These problems have just recently begun and I have ran Microsoft Anti-Spyware Beta1 and McAfee Anti-Virus and found no spyware or viruses.

Like I said these problems have just recently started. I don't know if its my internet connection or something on or wrong with my computer. I have Comcast, if that has anything to do with it.

If anyone knows anything about what is going on, your help would be greatly appreciated. Thanks.

P.S. Sorry if this is at all confusing.
