Why cannot the Automatic Windows Update when it is used on the server versions have an option to add a couple of email addresses to be notified when it is necessary to click on an EULA or do a restart for those patches that need these actions?

I agree with Shenan here. And I know a few people at Microsoft (through Beta testing) so I'll pass your post on to them. One of them was the PM for the Windows Server 2003 R2 beta (and is currently a PM on the Vista/Longhorn beta).
