Re: Group Policy Management Console, GPMC for Vista with SP1

Hi!

So I must install RSAT – right?

hi,

Windows Vista SP1 changes the tools that administrators use to manage Group Policy. Administrators requested features in Group Policy that simplify Group Policy management. To do this, Windows Vista SP1 uninstalls the GPMC; GPEdit.msc edits local Group Policy by default. An enhanced version of GPMC will be included in Windows Server 2008 as well as the Remote Server Administration Tools (RSAT) for Windows Vista SP1 shortly after Windows Server 2008 is released. The updated GPMC includes new features such as Group Policy preferences, Starter GPOs, comments, and search and filter capabilities.

Hello!

Did anybody know when the new Group Policy Management Console, GPMC for Vista with SP1 will be available?

The Existing Group Policy Management Console, GPMC will be deinstall with the SP1.
