

view column security

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.sqlserver.security/2002-09/2648.html>

From: Mary Lou Wallin (mary_lou_wallin@hotmail.com)

Date: 09/28/02

From: "Mary Lou Wallin" <mary_lou_wallin@hotmail.com>

Date: Sat, 28 Sep 2002 05:36:51 -0700

I'm using views to restrict row access against a table by joining to a "security" table based on SQL login. All users need to read all columns.

Some users will update certain columns, and other users will update other columns. Without setting up table column rights, is there any way to set up views with read-only rights to some columns and update rights to other columns?