

Re: Protecting database

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.sqlserver.security/2003-05/0351.html>

---

From: Kalen Delaney (replies_at_public_newsgroups.com)

Date: 05/25/03

Date: Sat, 24 May 2003 19:13:35 -0700

Oops, I meant the metadata is available to anyone who can connect!

--

HTH

-----

Kalen Delaney

SQL Server MVP

www.SolidQualityLearning.com

"Kalen Delaney" <replies@public\_newsgroups.com> wrote in message

news:OUT0YHmIDHA.2256@TK2MSFTNGP11.phx.gbl...

> An administrator can always see everything, except for the definition of > encrypted stored procedures and functions. Data cannot be encrypted, nor > can > the metadata.

> In the current versions, the metadata is available to anyone who can > cannot.

> That may change in the next version, but the superpowers of the admin will > not change.

>

> --

> HTH

> -----

> Kalen Delaney

> SQL Server MVP

> www.SolidQualityLearning.com

>

>

> "Johny" <goky2002@beograd.com> wrote in message

> news:egDNv9lIDHA.1732@TK2MSFTNGP11.phx.gbl...

> > I want to install my database on SQL server. I want to protect it so > that > > nobody can see the structure and the data(including administrator if it > is > > possible).

> >

> > How can I do that?

> >

> >

>

>

>