

Re: Database Users disappeared after restore

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.sqlserver.security/2003-08/0596.html>

From: Linda Bendele (lbendele_at_saleslogix.com)

Date: 08/28/03

Date: Thu, 28 Aug 2003 09:03:01 -0700

Why wouldn't he create the needed users in the new server and then update the user with `sp_change_users_login` ?

>-----Original Message-----

>Hi

>

>Your users are stored in master. More importantly, the user ID and name is >the only reference in you database. `sp_attach_db` and `sp_detach_db` do not >move the master information, and since the same user does not exist on the >other machine, the linkage is lost.

>

>On the other server, if you try to add a user to the database with the same >name, you will notice that it claims that the user already exists in the >database. That is because your user ID does not match the user name.

>

>It is recommended to remove all users from a database before an >attach/detach so that you do not have orphaned users.

>

>-----

>Mike Epprecht

>Epprecht Consulting (PTY) LTD

>Johannesburg, South Africa

>Mobile: +27-82-552-0268

>

>Specialist SQL Server Solutions and Consulting

>

>"Oladimeji Suberu" <ladi.suberu@systemtech-ng.com> wrote in message

>news:0bdc01c36d6b\$4b8bd790\$a501280a@phx.gbl...

>> I am trying to restore a database from one machine to microsoft.public.sqlserver.security: Re: Database Users disappered after restore >> another. I 've tried using Backup/Restore and equally >> using DTS. I equally used attach method of transact SQL.

>> At the end of any of the operation, the databasers are >> removed from the database living dbo only.

>>

>> Has anybody experienced this?

>>

>> Please help.

>>

>> Oladimeji Suberu

>>

>

>

>.

>