

Re: Access 2003 App and SA Account

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.sqlserver.security/2007-10/msg00134.html>

- From: "Russell Fields" <russellfields@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 29 Oct 2007 11:21:29 -0400
-

Linda,

The application is making a connection as 'sa'. Which means that if there is no connection code in the application, then it probably exists in the ODBC data source definition. An Access application coded to access a database as 'sa' is using way too much power and exposes the sa password to anyone with just a little bit of desire to find it.

I hope that you can find it and change the access to something more reasonable.

RLF

"Linda" <Lindy.Pan@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:1193668574.814397.191550@xx>

No linked servers here. Set-up is on SQL Server 2000.