

Re: Certificate Subject DN...

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2002-11/12492.html>

From: David Cross [MS] (dcross@online.microsoft.com)

Date: 11/28/02

From: "David Cross [MS]" <dcross@online.microsoft.com>

Date: Thu, 28 Nov 2002 08:35:52 -0800

Unfortunately this is a limitation of the Windows 2000 CA, it does not include the full DN. The Windows .NET CA has removed this limitation.

Note if you are using checkpoint, the latest version of their software no longer requires this odd requirement.

--

David B. Cross [MS]

--

This posting is provided "AS IS" with no warranties, and confers no rights.

<http://support.microsoft.com>

"William Adams" <w.adams@nexor.co.uk> wrote in message

news:#Ghg6BvlCHA.2224@tkmsftngp02...

> Hi,

>

> I have set up an Enterprise CA, I can happily issue certificates to people.

> However I have a problem, I have a security program that relies on the > subject DN in the certificate to be the actual DN of the user in the Active

> Directory. By default with a 'user' certificate template it is the email > address of the form CN=Bob Bloggs,emailAddress=Bob@bloggs.com. If you use > the 'Exchange user' template then it specifies a DN but this DN is made up > from what the user specifies on the form. Both of these methods mean the > subject DN in the certificate bears no relation to the active directory.

>

> Any ideas on how to make the subject DN reflect the location of the user

in > the directory?

>

> -Will

>

>

>