

Message text for users attempting to log in

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2003-02/1237.html>

---

From: robh (robh@thirdarrow.org)

Date: 02/19/03

From: "robh" <robh@thirdarrow.org>
Date: Wed, 19 Feb 2003 05:55:33 -0800

If you have W2K domain use domain security policy.
Otherwise you can do via login script using REG utility or exporting the registry entry and merging it (there is a switch for silent install but can't remember what it is).

If using login script the 2000/XP systems will need administrator rights to add to the registry.

>-----Original Message-----
>I have a mix of Win98/2000/XP workstations and need to >display the "This is a private computing facility...."
>type logon banner when users log on. I know how to do >this in the registry for the servers, but is there a way >to do this via login script (or similar) company-wide for >my users without actually visiting each PC ?
>
>Thanks!
>Mark
>
>