Running a Windows 2000 network. I have set Group policies on all levels to force users to logoff after a certain time.

It does not work. If I log off, I am unable to log back on due to the time restriction, but it does not force me off at that time. I have all of my network resources.

I checked and my "Force user to logoff how long after time expires:?" is set to 0. I tried to change it to 2 minutes, and it sticks for a little while but then it goes back to zero.

Any ideas where the zero is coming down from???

Any ideas on forcing logoffs??

Any help would be appreciated.

Thanks,

Mike
