

Re: Need Help programmatically setting AD Permissions

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2005-02/0713.html>

---

From: Andrew Sword [MVP] (exchange.mvp\_at\_nos.optushome.com.au)

Date: 02/28/05

Date: Mon, 28 Feb 2005 22:03:06 +1100

You could try psexec to run the session locally. Psexec is at this link <http://www.sysinternals.com/ntw2k/freeware/psexec.shtml>

This is assuming you have a rights issue.

"Buddy Robbins" <buddy.robbs@rimrockgroup.com> wrote in message news:%23eQ4cKgGFHA.2732@TK2MSFTNGP15.phx.gbl...

> Hey folks,

> I am in desparate need of help to solve my problem.

>

> I have written a service that examines a table in a database, and creates > a directory hierarchy based on data in the table. It then > programmatically grants and revokes privileges to groups on the different > directories in the hierarchy.

>

> It creates the directories correctly, and on my XP development machine, it > assigns the privileges correctly.

> When I deploy it to the target machine (Win 2k server), when I look at the > security in the directories, I get a message the that rights are out of > order. I have to manually go into explorer, look at securty and let it > reorder it for the privileges to work correctly.

>

> I've used the knowledge base article (269159-How to use VB and ADsSecurity > to property order ACEs in and ACL) to write a reorder function.

>

> The function, however, dies on the last line, calling the > SetSecurityDescriptor method with an ArgumentException. The helpful > message was "The parameter is incorrect".

>

> Has anyone done this on a 2k machine, found the error, and know how to > "correct" the parameter?

>

> I've seen a few other people on the web have this problem, but I couldn't > find any answers.

>