

Re: User access rights problem

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2005-06/0313.html>

From: Brad (Brad_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 06/24/05

Date: Fri, 24 Jun 2005 10:00:02 -0700

How do you check a users group membership on the TS, when it is not the domain controller where I access directory services?

"Steven L Umbach" wrote:

> On the terminal server check the users group membership and compare it to > the user who does not have a problem. The command net user username may help > substituting the users logon name for username. --- Steve
>
>
> *"Brad" <Brad@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message > news:4B23A651-02B0-4046-8B21-5F0FBDC56CC5@microsoft.com...
>> In Users and Groups I have a user that is a member of the administrators >> group. However when he logs on to a terminal server session and >> attempts >> to run an application he gets a message that he needs to be granted >> Standard
>> User rights.
>> I have another user configured the same way with no problem.
>> Please help*
>
>
>