

Disabling Interactive Login

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2005-08/0249.html>

---

From: -KK- (KK_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 08/23/05

Date: Mon, 22 Aug 2005 16:29:01 -0700

We've been working on an in-house application that works through an portal. Users who log-in through this portal use LDAP to authenticate through Active Directory.

Is is possible to make these logins disabled from being able to Interactively Login to a desktop machine on the domain..?

If so which method would be the best way..? Using Group Policies or is there a better option within Active Directory.

Thanks,