

Re: Microsoft Windows Defender Beta 2

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.win2000.security/2006-02/msg00081.html>

- From: SAG <grey_b@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 15 Feb 2006 19:15:08 -0800
-

=?Utf-8?B?amFibG9vbWYxMjMw?= <jabloomf1230@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
wrote in <news:8A4CA7E3-57A0-4BA5-A670-D2A9C30291BD@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>:

What can you do when you try to install it on a Windows 2000 machine and it says the installation failed because GDI+ is not installed? I was under the impression that the library GDIPlus.dll only resides in specific software directories (like Net Framework and 3rd party software). When I try to regsvr32 the file gdiplus.dll, it says that it is already loaded.

I am running Service Pack 4 with the most recent updates as of today. Well, I guess MS Defender IS a beta.

Same thing happened here. Win2k SP4 with all updates. So I went to MS, and downloaded gdiplus_dnl.exe, extracted the gdiplus.dll, put it in system32, and Windows Defender installed just fine. No where on the Windows defender site did it list GDI+ as a system requirement. Interesting.

--
SAG

Please remove spam block to reply by email

.