What do you mean it is blocking every time? What is the exact error message? Is this happening for just one user, just one computer, or for every user that changes their password on every computer?? Is the server just a server or is it a domain controller and the computer a domain member?? A good place to start is to use Event Viewer to examine the logs on the client computer, the domain controller [if there is one] and the computer that is trying to be accessed. --- Steve

Hello people,

I'm having a very strange problem. I change my password, but now it is bloking every time. I'm using windows 2kPro with NT4.0 as server.

Tks for help me!

Renato!
