

microsoft.public.windows.server.security: Re: Running a software / program as a service.

Re: Running a software / program as a service.

Source: <http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.windows.server.security/2005-04/0517.html>

From: Joe Richards [MVP] (humorexpress_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 04/30/05

Date: Fri, 29 Apr 2005 22:50:33 -0400

SC will not run an app as a service, it is for installing and configuring services.

--

Joe Richards Microsoft MVP Windows Server Directory Services

www.joeware.net

Chris M wrote:

> Backup wrote:

>

>> I am looking to have a program run as a service in my Windows XP or >> 2003 Box.

>>

>> Normally I have it start up in the startup folder, but this requires >> me to login into the computers profile to do so. So what I am looking >> for is to some how have it start when I boot my pc (as a service).

>

>

> Take a look at sc create /?

>

> or Google for SRVANY.EXE as Joe suggested.

>

> YMMV with either of these methods. As Joe said, it's best if the program > is meant to be a service in the first place.

>