

Re: shadow copy – efs – compression

Source:

<http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.windows.server.security/2006-04/msg00219.html>

- From: "djc" <noone@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Fri, 21 Apr 2006 15:16:09 -0400
-

Paul & Roger, get off your high horses. Ever heard of multi-tasking? I hate responses like that. I use all resources available to get answers. Just because I am asking a question that can be easily figured out by testing does NOT mean I shouldn't ask it or that it doesn't deserve an answer. I can be in the middle of testing several things to learn and get answers, as well as reading books and tutorials, as well as posting questions to newsgroups. I get a LOT more done in a shorter amount of time that way.

In actuality it is called 'being smart' and using all available resources to solve several problems simultaneously.

Just because I ask a question that is easily discoverable by testing does NOT mean that:

- I don't spend enough time 'experimenting' and 'doing'.
- I don't understand the importance of actual hands-on learning and experience.
- I think I can get by on book knowledge alone and I am trying to do so.

your responses (excluding the suggestion to post in a more appropriate group – that at least is good advice) are more fitting for one of the many unfriendly linux newsgroups out there. Not to knock the linux community, but they are known for being very n00bie intolerant and have the 'figure it out yourself dimwit' attitude. Not all of them, but the majority.

hopefully you both will find this at least a little enlightening and realize that everyone out there that asks questions like this are not just trying to cut corners or skip out on the most important thing of all: hands-on experience.

obviously, I'm offended.

have a nice weekend! :)

"Roger Abell [MVP]" <mvpNoSpam@xxxxxxx> wrote in message <news:%231Q1%233VZGHA.3532@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

"Paul Adare" <padare@xxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message

Re: shadow copy – efs – compression

news:MPG.1eb2c71fe3a0918a98a0fa@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

In article <urkrZIVZGHA.1192@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, in the microsoft.public.windows.server.security news group, Roger Abell [MVP] <mvpNoSpam@xxxxxxx> says...

Great questions, but given that they (mostly) have nothing to do with security, and are NTFS or VSS specific, perhaps this would be better addressed is asked in microsoft.public.windows.file_system

Sounds like someone's studying for something. Perhaps someone should be trying these things out for one's self.

Agreed and agreed, Paul.
Most all would be fairly quickly discoverable with some tests.

—
ra