im going to college in about a month and i want to make it so that someone has to type a password in order to get into my computer, i know i could use a CMOS password, but would rather not if i don't have too. i assume that since i am the the only user on the computer, the computer skips the welcome screen becuase it deems it unnecessary. I tried going into user accounts to try and fix it but was unable to find a way to fix it. If anyone could help it would be appreciated
