Ponder this..I am running xp on my machine with an external DSL modem..I have the built in firewall enabled. I just purchased Zone Alarm Pro 3.7 and am having a hard time configuring it due to all my programs that require internet access like windows update,messenger,Quicken etc etc etc..My internet connection changes each time I connect so exactly how much protection does the built in firewall give me ?? Zone alarm is constantly telling me every few minutes that my machine is blocking port scans and various other(to use a word) attacks..Why do I not have this with the built in firewall?? or is one cancelling out the other ??? and lastly can I customize the built in firewall to give more protection ??...As always Thanks and Cheers to all !!.....Drew
