My kids (5 and 3) use the computer a lot. I want to have their user accounts prevent them from accessing the internet. i will be moving to a cable connection that is always 'on', so potentially the kids could wander into undesirable territory. My preference is to simply block all acces at this stage, then gradually open it up as they mature. When I set 'Program Access and Defaults' I can deny access to internet explorer, but this seems to be applied universally across all users.

Any ideas?

Thanks,

Brian
