

Re: Pre-installed

Source:

http://www.derkeiler.com/Newsgroups/microsoft.public.windowsxp.security_admin/2003-07/1044.html

From: John Butler (useless_at_SPAMuseless.com)

Date: 07/07/03

Date: Mon, 7 Jul 2003 11:35:40 +0100

John River,

Unless you are doing this on a large scale, the best way of doing this is to buy the software [Windows, office, etc..] and install it then get your customers to pay for it with the system and give them the relevant CD's. This what I do and to avoid spending time on upgrades I have the updates stored on a proxy server so that they can be rapidly downloaded to a new machine.

If you are selling many PC's you need to approach Microsoft for OEM terms.

--

Onclejean

"John River" <johnriver1@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:XPb0a.8414$404.738356@newsfep2-win.se

> Hi

>

> As a computer practitioner I sell computer systems of various types.

> My question is what are the legal views on selling a computer with a > preinstalled copy of windows or office etc on it.

>

> What is the most common way for someone like myself to be able to sell a pc > with windows on it with out going to great expense and having to buy a > license every time. Lots of computer companies do it, how is this legally > possible. Please note I am not looking to break any laws.

>

> Thanks

>

> John

>

>