I have a new sony computer, it's working great but, when I bring up Internet Explorer, it comes up with yahoo as the default page, this is good. But if I enter another address example www.google.com, I get a message that says 'We Can't find 'google.com''. I don't know how this happened. I don't know if something got downloaded that changed the security level or something. Does anyone have any idea what I did or how to fix it?
