You will need to make sure that the group does not have allow permission for create folders/append data for folders and subfolders. There are a couple ways to do that using special permissions where a group can have different permissions for the possibilities found in the "apply onto" box that you can see when you look at the special permissions of the root folder on a default install of XP Pro in the advanced page of the security page. The link below explains more on special permissions. In your case you probably want to have separate permissions for folders and subfolders and then files only. Note that when you see create folders/append the create folders only applies to folders and subfolders while append applies only to files.--- Steve
