Hello,

Because I hate wasting time hunting for stuff I may or may not find, I'm just looking for a quick answer to the following question:

In order to get the Welcome Logon Screen in Windows XP Client computers, do I have to use Workgroups, or can I go the Domain Level for User Security on a Windows NT 4.0 Server domain? I need to keep the Welcome Screen for logon simplicity purposes, but I want Domain Level User security. My boss says that she can only get the Welcome Screen in Workgroup mode, not domain mode.

Just a point in a good direction would be helpful, since I know pretty much nothing about Windows XP at this point (I never got past Windows 2k Professional).

Thanks in advance for any assistance.

How many users would then be listed? hahahaha :D I'll guess about 100 :D (Not a nice thing to see..)
